

Brian Trappe: Practice Leader

With many years' experience recruiting senior level technical and commercial talent for technology organisations worldwide, Brian is highly qualified to lead our CleanTech and Automotive Technologies practices.

Having spent five years developing the European automotive and motorsport market, he is now based in Singapore where he has built up a strong network within the APAC renewable energy sector.

Brian graduated with a first class Mechanical Engineering degree from University College Dublin and spent six years working as a project engineer for an international automotive consultancy before moving into the world of recruitment.

This experience informs his understanding of the technology sector and the requirements of projects and organisations within it.
